

2009 is a year of change at M&E Equipment, as we proudly announce, that we have commenced building our new facility located at 24 Ferndell Street, South Granville, where we expect to have completed our move by the end of the year. This new facility will cover 23,000 square meters, with more than half the facility undercover, making M&E Equipment the largest process equipment trader in Australia. Our new facility will also be the home to our new electrical department with automated counter sales area and showroom for M&E's extensive product range.

In today's current global economic environment, M&E Equipment continues to offer your company the competitive edge you need by not only selling quality used equipment at a fraction of the new cost, but also providing prompt, quality service backed by a family-owned business.

M&E, as a buyer, can also turn your company's surplus equipment into cash whilst offering prompt payment for complete plants, process or single items. By using our own crew to dismantle and remove your equipment; no job is ever too big or too small.

M&E Equipment will provide updates on the new facility development. More importantly, we thank you for your business to date and look forward to working with you in the future.
